Choice Poetry.

TO AN ABSENT FRIEND.

Then art far from all thy early friends—
Far from thy childhood's early home;
Thou hast left familiar scenes of youth,
In stranger lands to roam.

But though strong fate has called thee hence,
Dread not the part thou must perform;
Dread not the part thou must perform;
Dread not the part thou must perform.

But memories cannot quite dispel
All shadows from thy brow;
As twilight darkness veils the sky,
Thou art not quite alone.

A scene fondly remembered—
Perchance an idle dream—
And oft when lost in thoughts of thee,
I'm startled by a tear:

For though a host of loving friends
Meet daily with me still
Thou art not quite alone;
Thou art not quite alone.

Thou art not quite alone;
Thou art not quite alone;
Thou art not quite alone;

Exemplary Patience.

In court, Judge Olin was violently attacked by a young and very impatient attorney, but heard him quite through and made no reply. After the adjournment for the day, and when all had assembled at the hotel, where the judge and many of the court had their lodgings, one of the company, referring to the scene at court, asked the judge why he did not rebuke the impatient fellow.

"Permit me," said the judge, "but I ought to call the attention of all the company, among which was 'the fellow' in question, 'permit me to tell my story. My father, when he lived down the country, had a dog—a more puppy, I may say. Well, this puppy would go out every moonlight night, and bark at the moon for hours together."

Here the judge paused, as if he had done with his story.

"Well, well, what of it?" exclaimed half a dozen of the audience at once.

"Oh, nothing—nothing whatever! The moon kept right on as if nothing had happened."

Progress and the Rod.

The Albany Transcript, which has a schoolmaster among its editors, is responsible for the following:

"The principal of one of our select schools has been sending circulars to the parents of the pupils, which, signed and returned, will authorize him to inflict such punishment, corporally or otherwise, as may in his judgment be proper. The following answer proves that some of the parents are pleased with the idea:

DEAR MR. RATTEN.—Your hikin cirklar is duly received. I hope as to my John, you will flog him just as soon as you kin. I have a bad boy—is John. Hitho I've been in habit of teachin him myself, it seems to me he never will lern anything—his spellin outrageously deficient. Wallup him well, ser, and you will receive my thanks.

P. S.—What accounts for John bein sich a skollar is that he is my sun by my wife's fust husband."

"Odd and good is old Dr. Nichols, who formerly practiced medicine in Ohio. He took up the business, having been 'brought up to a trade; and as the calls and fees did not come fast enough to suit him, he added an apothecary's shop to his business, for the retail of drugs and medicines. He had a great sign painted to attract the wandering eyes of the villagers, and the Doctor level to stand in front of the store and explain its beauties to the gaping beholders. One of these was an Irishman, who gazed at it for a while with a comical look, and then exclaimed,

"Och! and by the powers, Doctor, if it isn't fine! but there's something a little bit wanting in it."

"And what, pray, is that?" asked the Doctor.

"Why you see," says Pat, "you've got a beautiful sheet of water here, and not a bit of a bird swimming in it."

"Ah—yes," replied the doctor; "that's a good thought. I'll have a couple of swans painted there; wouldn't they be fine?"

"Faith and I don't know but they would," says Pat; but I'm after thinking there's another kind of bird what would be more appropriate."

"And what's that?" asks the Doctor.

"Why I can't exactly think of his name just now, but he is one of them kind of birds that when he sings he says 'Quack, Quack, Quack!'"

"The last that was seen of Pat and the Doctor, Pat was running for dear life, and the Doctor after him.—Harp Alleg.

Western Sign of Civilization.—The sight of the gallows used to be considered a sign of civilization. The army correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat has found a more common one. He writes:

"I have come to the conclusion that the whisky shop is the harbinger of civilization in the West. Alone on the prairie was a whisky barrel in the centre of a square."

On the four naked posts, which stood on the four corners was placed a kind of covering, from which hung some bedding. Sitting on the grass by the barrel, with a tin measure in his hand, ready to wait on his customers, was the proprietor of the establishment. I will do him justice to say that he seemed to feel ashamed of himself.

A colored firm in Newark, N. J., having suffered some pecuniary embarrassments, recently closed business, and the senior member gave the following 'notice' to the public: "The dissolution of co-partnership heretofore existing between me and Moses Jones, in the barber profession, am heretofore resolved. Persons who owe me must pay the inclosed. Dem what the firm owe must call on Jones, as the firm is dissolved."

LIGEN JOHNSON.

The ugliest of trades have their moments of pleasure. Now, if I were a grave-digger, or even a hargman, there are some people I could work for with great enjoyment.—Douglas Jerrold.

A man writing from Arkansas to his friends in this State, says that there is a queer country: if a man goes there with a five-dollar gold piece, they tar and feather him for being an aristocrat, and if he is poor they let theague shake him to death.

A Perservering Candidate.—During an election a candidate called upon a tradesman and solicited his vote. "I would rather vote for the devil than you," was the reply. "But in case your friend should not come forward," said the candidate, "might I then count upon your assistance?"

A Scriptural Reproof.

An eminently Christian lady, now in heaven, once administered a very salutary reproof to a minister who was too frequently in the practice of showing a bitter spirit toward his fellow Christians. He was dining at the table of her husband, also a minister, and dealt out his acerbity and acrimonious remarks to all around him, and at length, with an air and tone bordering on rudeness, he turned to her and said:

"Well, now, madam, I am determined to have your opinion."

She very calmly replied, "Why, sir, I had rather be excused from giving it."

He rejoined, "But we must and will have it, for we live in times in which all ought to show their colors."

"Well, sir," she replied, "then my opinion is this: that gentlemen had better keep their razors to shave their own faces, and not employ them to cut and slash every body who does not think exactly as they do. I also think, sir, that Paul judged the same when he said to Titus, 'Put them in mind to speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, showing meekness to all men.' The gentleman soon after retired."

Among the thousands who met at Indianapolis to welcome Colonel Johnson, of Kentucky, when he made his electioneering tour through the Western States in 1840, was 'Old Charlie,' a negro who once was a servant of the Colonel, but was now free and settled in Indiana. Charlie was in full feather. He took the old soldier under his protection, installed himself as door-keeper, and no one was permitted to shake hands with his former master unless by Charlie's introduction. While the crowd was at the door, a portly pompous man came up, and, taking the negro by the hand, said:

The Celebration.

On Wednesday evening, agreeably to announcement, the celebration of the laying of the Atlantic Cable came off. The bells were rung, cannon fired, the old Court-house illuminated, bonfires blazing, rockets fired, the "Blues" out in full strength—and most noisest of all, Young America was out in full glory with fire crackers. Taking all together, it was about the noisiest time we remember in our quiet town. Shortly after the commencement of the performance a heavy fall of rain took place, which had rather a cooling effect upon the ardor of those engaged, and shortened the affair, much to the regret of many who were "in the full tide of noisy experiment." The band occupied the Court-house during the rain and gave us excellent music.

The Sabbath-schools of the Methodist Episcopal, and the German Reformed Churches, had their pic-nics last week. Both had, what is termed, "a delightful time." The children spent a few very joyous hours, and the elder ones were much gratified with these cheerful and enlivening assemblages.

The Ware-house of Klinefelter & Co., corner of Stratton and Railroad streets, is now under roof, and will soon be finished. The large brick ware-house of Mr. Hoke, N. W. corner of Railroad and Carlisle streets, is up above the second story. It is a very large and substantial building, and will answer its purposes admirably. The building on the opposite corner, lately purchased by Sheels, Buehler & Kurtz, has been taken down, and the workmen are now in progress of commencing their large three-story edifice. This building, we learn, is to be of highly ornamental exterior, and will attract considerable attention, if carried out according to plan.

The Court-house is going up rapidly, considering its size. The first story is a-bout completion. It will be a very fine edifice.

Since the completion of the Littlestown Railroad, that village has taken quite a start in improvements, and a number of fine buildings have been already erected, and others are on the way. Among the most prominent is the old hotel of Mr. Barker, which has been taken down to the foundation, with a view to the erection of a large brick hotel, which has been commenced, and is now ready for the second-story joists. Messrs. Bange & Miller have in operation a very extensive foundry and machine shop, manufacturing every kind of agricultural machinery, and giving employment to a large number of workmen.

Mr. G. F. Becker, of Hanover, has purchased Mrs. Milley's Tavern-stand in New Oxford, and will remove there in the spring. Price $4,000.

The celebration of the laying of the Atlantic Telegraph Cable, at Philadelphia, on Wednesday, was one of the most imposing ever known there. The display of military, firemen, and civic bodies was magnificent. The city seemed, by some strange convulsion, says the News, to have been thrown into a state of the wildest excitement. Pendants from the roofs of houses, flag poles, &c., in every part of the city, banners, ensigns, devices, and all sorts of emblems of rejoicing were swung to the breeze; a more perfect gala-day was never witnessed in sober-sided Philadelphia. It is computed that there were not less than 20,000 strangers in the City to witness the ceremonies.

The celebration of the laying of the Cable was very general in the cities and towns of this country, on Wednesday last.

Mr. H. M. Bowyer, of the vicinity of Finestale, Va., a highly respectable man, and one of their best citizens, walked into the Finestale Farmers' Bank on the 26th ult., and shot its President, Mr. James McDowell, who died in a short time. He then walked across the street, and calmly reloaded himself and pistol into custody of a peace officer. Mr. McDowell had seduced the daughter of Mr. Bowyer—hence the deserved punishment.

Telegraphic Time.—The difference in time between Trinity Bay and Valentin Bay is about 3 hours and 43 minutes. A dispatch was sent from Dublin to Newfoundland, simply saying:—"It is twelve o'clock now in Dublin; what hour in Newfoundland?" Answer—"Eight o'clock in the morning." The answer was received within an hour and a half. Between the extreme eastern and western points of the United States, there is a difference of time of 3 hours and 59 minutes.

Indian Troubles in Washington Territory.

WASHINGTON, August 31.—The Governor of Washington Territory, Hon. Mr. McMullen, has arrived here. He represents that when he left the Territory, a month ago, the Indians west of the Cascade Mountains were disposed to be friendly, but were entreated that they might be influenced by those residing east of the mountains, who defeated Col. Stepten. A vigorous campaign against them and severe chastisement will, however, probably have the effect of producing a general peace among the savages, who must sensibly feel the power of the government. He says that bands of Indians from the British and Russian possessions, who are extremely formidable and shrewd, are in the habit of plundering and killing the settlers in the most exposed portions of the Territory.

Gambling on the Mississippi.

We are told that gambling prevails to a fearful extent on board the steamboats that pass up and down the Mississippi River. All sorts of games are practiced there, and among those who travel are some of the most plausible and finished rogues. A short time since a party of blacklegs induced several returned Californians to venture a few hundreds upon the changes of the cards or the dice, and at the end of the game the Californians discovered that three counterfeit bills, for $50 each, had been passed off upon them. They immediately demanded good money in exchange. This was refused for a time, as the blacklegs pretended they had none. They were then given to understand that, unless they rectified the fraud immediately, they would be forced to take their chances for the night at the very next unwholesome island the boat should reach. Finding the alternative rather serious, they reluctantly made the exchange demanded, and endeavored to conciliate the Californians by inviting them to drink. The same knaves a day or two before contrived to win $1,000 from a very young merchant of Louisiana, who was on his way North to buy goods.

Gambling on the Mississippi is a profession which is followed by hundreds, old as well as young. All sorts of combinations are formed by these gentry. They will come on board a boat from different points, and as apparent strangers, and after getting acquainted with the various parties, two or three will set down at the gaming table, with the object of more killing time. Gradually they will tempt the inexperienced by drink and excitement, and then proceed to cheat and plunder them, as coolly as if they were engaged in some creditable employment. On one occasion a noted counterfeiter was discovered to be on a boat, when he was immediately put ashore; and at a point where the prejudices against counterfeiter were so great that they often hung them up without Judge or Jury. Life on the Mississippi is characterized by extraordinary scenes and incidents.

Cold Blooded Murder.

A correspondent of the Mobile Mercury writing from Marion, Mass., gives an account of a cold blooded murder, committed on the 11th ult.:

J. M. Steele keeps a livery stable, and Colonel Hudnall and others had been there engaged in a warm discussion. One by one they had left after sunset, and Hudnall was the last. Steele charged him with stealing money out of his pocket. Hudnall told him that it was a lie, whereupon Steele attempted to strike him with a stick, which Hudnall succeeded in wresting from him. Steele then drew a Bowie knife and cut his throat. Steele walked through the crowd with his knife in his hand, defying the whole of them, and came up and stood over his victim as he was expiring, and heaped abuse upon him with horrible imprecations. He then mounted a horse and rode away unmolested. There were but few persons about. Hudnall was sixty and infirm. Steele is young, and has been leading lately a reckless life. He stands indicted for sundry outrageous acts, and among them, assaults with intent to kill. He has left behind him in his flight, a beautiful and amiable wife, with one child.

Fifteen Hundred Dollars for Whipping his Wife.

A man in good circumstances, living on the line of Pittsborough, adjoining the city, attended the Atlantic Cable celebration on Thursday night, and took enough of the intoxicating cup to make him forget the "golden rule." He went home late, and without any cause whatever, whipped his wife (the mother of two lovely children) most unmercifully. Yesterday morning she banded up her clothes, and was leaving her home to return to her parents. When the repentant husband perceived the drift of her preparations, he began to make promises of better treatment in the future if she only would not leave him. She, however, persisted in her determination to go; and he, in an indecent effort to stay, offered to transfer to her the house and lot they occupied worth some $1700, which she accepted. There is a debt of $180 on the lot. Alderman Daft was engaged yesterday in making the draft.—Pittsburg Jour. 21st.

On Saturday night, the 21st ult., a man named GEORGE BAUBARTZ, living in Manchester, Carroll County, Maryland, who drives a stage from that place to Glen Rock, was engaged in hauling passengers from the Railroad Station to the Camp. The night train from Baltimore came up about 2 o'clock, A. M., and the procession of stages started. Some persons jumped behind this man's stage, when another told him to "get behind." He did so, when a person jumped off, ran ahead, picked up some stones, threw one at the driver, and inflicted severe wounds on his face and head. One wound was over the eye, crushing the bone; the other cut his lip through. He was taken home to Manchester the next day, and on last Wednesday we heard that he had died. He was an industrious man, a shoemaker by trade, and leaves a wife and children.—York Rep.

Railroad Extension.

The citizens of Waynesboro' and Hagers-town, and vicinity, appear to be determined to have a Railroad outlet from their fertile valley. As the first step towards it, they have employed an Engineer to make preliminary surveys, and locate a road from this place to Waynesboro' and Hagerstown, and make report of the cost of the work.

The route, taking what work has already been done on it, will be comparatively a cheap one. The mountain has already been overcome by a well graded road. The most expensive twelve miles of the work is graded, and finished with very superior arched stone bridges, so that the finishing of the entire line of the road, compared with other roads, will be at a small cost.

We wish them success in the enterprise they are undertaking. Their valley is rich, and has enriched their farmers, and they are abundantly able to carry the enterprise through. The Gettysburg Railroad Company has been steadily carrying their work through to completion, amid the greatest financial revulsion that the country has felt for many years. The Managers have worked with untiring energy, and have brought the work on without a moment's suspension. Now, when this storm is subsiding, and prosperity is beginning to beam forth again, with how much more ease can this prospective work be accomplished?

The Railroad.

The track-layers completed the track of the Gettysburg Railroad to Goulden's Station on Thursday last, a distance of less than five miles east of this place. As will be seen by an advertisement in another column the Company will run daily trains regularly to and from that point for a few weeks until completed to this place. This will enable passengers from this place traveling to Baltimore, York, Harrisburg, Philadelphia, &c., to leave here about 7 o'clock in the morning instead of 6 under the present arrangement. We understand that the Rock Cut half a mile on this side of Goulden's Station, which has caused so much difficulty, will be cut through ready for the track next week. Thus there will be no delay to the track-layers, and we can confidently expect the road to be finished and in running order to this place in about 6 weeks.—Star.

He has a man to oppose him now, who will meet him where he then blew his trumpet undisturbed. Lecompton is too heavy a load to carry.

The Democratic Conferees of York, Cumberland and Perry counties were in session for two days last week, but could not agree upon a candidate—Cumberland going for Dr. Ahl, Perry for Mr. McIntire, and York for H. L. Fisher—three for each. After the 27th ballot the conferees adjourned until to-day.

The large hospital building, on Staten Island, N. Y., besides other buildings, were burned on Wednesday night, by a mob numbering 1,000 persons. The citizens have been for some time opposed to having this establishment in their vicinity, and have resorted to this lawless mode of remedying the evil.

The message of the English directors, containing thirty-one words, was sent in thirty-five minutes. The latter was transmitted first, and both despatches were repeated, to insure accuracy. The Queen's message has not been published in England.—Mr. Field's first message to the directors—the last thirty-eight words of it—were transmitted in twenty-two minutes.

On Sunday, under the direction of the United States civil officers, the negroes, 306 in number, were taken by the steamer, Gen. Clinch and conveyed to Castle Pickens, in our harbor, where they will be guarded by a detachment from the garrison at Fort Moultrie. As they present the plant to gain the steamer's deck, they present a strange and affecting sight, many of them being reduced to mere skeletons by the suffering and deprivations of the voyage.

Among the incidents of the capture we learn that the night before that event, the vessel being within about eighty miles of the port of destination, a grand champagne 'blow out' was had on board in anticipation of soon successfully completing the voyage and entering the proceeds of which we were informed each of the crew were to receive $900, and the owners expected to clear $130,000; but before they had had time to sleep off the effects of their potations the Dolphin bore in sight at daylight, much to their surprise and chagrin. Two sick passengers, against whom there was no proof of emphyria, were taken on board the Dolphin and put ashore at this place.

A writer in the Charleston Courier objects to sending the slaves back to Africa, argues that they may be sold into slavery, and says one man in that city has offered $50,000 in cash for one hundred of them. The Evening News of that city, however, takes bold ground in favor of their return, and says there is no other course, under the law, for the United States officials to pursue. It adds 'they cannot be permitted to be enslaved, nor would it be either politic or proper that they should be turned loose in the United States as freemen.'

Two Young Ladies Killed.

Miss Matilda Caldwell, a beautiful and amiable girl, about 20 years of age, daughter of Judge Caldwell, of Hollidaysburg, was killed on Wednesday night last. She had been at a wedding at the house of Rev. Lloyd Knight, and was returning home about 11 o'clock in a vehicle driven by a young man named Wertz. The horse took fright, and ran off. Miss Caldwell leaped out and fell with violence upon her head. She remained insensible until she expired about three hours afterwards.

A young lady, named Catharine Light of Lebanon county, was also killed in the same manner, on Thursday week, by jumping out from the horse was running away. She fell with her head upon a pile of scantling near the road, and was instantly killed.

A terrible disaster occurred on the Railroad near Pittsburg, on Wednesday night, by a car being thrown from the track and rolling down an embankment. At the first revolution, the roof was torn off, and the passengers scattered over the ground, mangled the bodies of some of them terribly. A Miss Kincaid was instantly killed, and 21 others much injured.

The distinguished Temperance Lecturer, Mr. John H. W. Hawkins, died at Parkersburg, Va., a few days ago. He was one of the 'original six' who originated the Washingtonian movement some years ago. He has lectured ever since in all parts of the U. States.

The venerable Wm. Wilkins, of Pittsburg, was attacked on Monday with paralysis of the tongue and left arm.

Drought in Virginia.

The drought in the 'New River Country,' Virginia, continues. In Giles county, New river can be waded across in many places. Grass is dying and there will not be half a crop of corn. The Monroe County (Va.) Advertiser says that for two months there has not been rain enough in that county to lay the dust, and adds:—'The corn crops in this county will fall short more than one half; some farmers will not have a fourth of a crop. The grass in some places is literally burned up.' The Petersburg Democrat says:

The corn crop is past redemption. There was a fine rain in the neighborhood of Bedford's Fork about a week or ten days ago, which recovered the corn very much, but the crops from Meherin, through Brunswick, Dinwiddie, Chesterfield, and all along the Virginia Central Railroad looks like a famine was at hand. I saw them cutting corn down in Dinwiddie that seemed to have no ears on it.

A Train Stopped by Grasshoppers.—It is stated that a freight train on the Newburg (N. Y.) Branch road was stopped by grasshoppers a few days since. Large numbers of grasshoppers had lighted upon the track, literally covering the rail. The train passed over a great number of them, which made the track so slippery that the wheels turned round without going forward. Sand was procured and poured upon the rail, when the train resumed its accustomed motion, and proceeded without any further delay.

New Branch of Commerce.—The New Orleans Picayune notices a hunter of alligators, who has captured four hundred in the swamps near that city since May. He goes at night with a pan of fire, and shoots them as they crowd around the light. The skins are sold at 75 cents each, and make boots. The oil, tusk and hide of these four hundred have netted the captor $560 in three months.

The heat of this summer, in Spain, has been intense beyond memory; everywhere, almost every day, above 100 in the shade.

A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF RICH GLOSSY HAIR, Completely Preserved to the Greatest Age.
 And who that is grey would not have it restored to former color, or had, but would have the growth restored, or troubled with dandruff and itching but would have it removed, or troubled with scurfiness, scald head, or other eruptions, but would be cured, or with sick head ache, (neuralgia) but would be cured. It will restore all kinds of hair from the scalp and skin. Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative will do all this, see circular and the following.
 ANY ANNOY, November 5, 1856.
 PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: I have heard much and read the wonderful cures of your Hair Restorative, but having been so often cheated by quackery and quack nostrums, hair dyes, &c., I was disposed to place your Restorative in the same category with the thousand and one loudly trumpeted quack remedies, until I met you in Lawrence county some months since, when you gave me such assurance as induced the trial of your Restorative in my family—first by my good wife, whose hair had become very thin and entirely white, and before exhausting one of your large bottles, her hair was restored nearly to its original color, brown color, and had thickened and become beautiful and glossy upon, and entirely over the head; she continues to use it, not simply because of its beautiful effects upon the hair, but because of its healthy influence upon the head and mind. Others of my family and friends are using your Restorative, with the happiest effects; therefore my scepticism and doubts in reference to its character and value are entirely removed, and I can and do most cordially and confidentially recommend its use to all who would have their hair restored from the loss and skin. Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative will do all this, see circular and the following.
 Very truly and gratefully yours,
 SOLOMON MANN.
 PRIZED WOOD: I was a long time before I saw you at Blissfield before I got the bottle of Restorative for which you gave me an order upon your agent in Detroit, and when I got it we concluded to try it on Mrs. Mann's hair, as I was sure, rest of my family would be assured of it would do, and others of my family and friends have witnessed its effects, are now using and recommending its use to others as entitled to the highest consideration you claim for it.
 Again, very respectfully,
 SOLOMON MANN.
 CARLISLE, Pa., June 24, 1857.
 I have used Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, and have admired its wonderful effects. My hair was becoming, as I thought, permanently grey, but the use of your Restorative has restored its original color, and I have no doubt, permanently so.
 W. C. WOOD & CO., Proprietors, 212 Broadway, N. Y. (theatre corner) N. Y. Wire Railing Box, (sent by mail) No. 114 Market street, St. Louis, Mo.
 And sold by all good Druggists.
